Princeton Public Schools Hosts Student Film Fest

Princeton, NJ – On Sunday, May 7, Princeton Public Schools and the Princeton Education Foundation will be hosting the first-ever Walnut Lane Film Festival, featuring films created by John Witherspoon Middle School and Princeton High School students.

The festival offers Princeton students a unique opportunity to showcase their creativity, talent, and skills through the images, words and music that they fuse together in their original short films. The films, which were entirely written, produced, and directed by Princeton Public Schools students, include a variety of genres, from quirky comedies to moving dramas.

The Walnut Lane Film Festival will be held on Sunday, May 7, at 10:00 AM at the Princeton Garden Theatre. The festival is free and open to the public.

The festival is sponsored in part by Green Bear Creative, a company dedicated to improving business websites and launching them into the 21st century using a transparent flat fee pricing model.
