

Christopher Loeffler

Conductor

CHRISTOPHER LOEFFLER has been Artistic Director of the Central Jersey Choral Society since 2008. He is responsible for musical programming, conducting performances, and developing and preparing vocal talent within the community. His work with the CJCS includes performances of Mozart's Requiem, Elijah, Ein Deutches Requiem, Bernstein's The Chichester Psalms, and most recently the Vaughan Williams Dona Nobis Pacem.

In addition to his work with the CJCS, Mr. Loeffler has been the chorus director at Toms River High School North since 2000. In his tenure in Toms River he has conducted numerous musicals and choral performances. He serves as the Choral Director of the Pinecone Singers at the Pines at Whiting, and has conducted and sung locally at the Morrisville United Methodist Church. As a vocalist, Mr. Loeffler has performed with the Westminster Symphonic Choir under the batons of Joseph Flummerfelt, Zdenek Macal, Kurt Masur, and Wolfgang Sawallisch. He has been a member of the Boheme Opera NJ Chorus and has performed chorus roles in Turandot, Rigoletto, La Traviata, and The Pirates of Penzance under the direction of Joseph Pucciatti. He made his vocal solo debut in 2010 in the new cantata Sing My Soul, composed by George Gray, as John the Baptist.

Mr. Loeffler holds a bachelor of music degree in music education from Westminster Choir College, where he studied choral conducting under James Jordan and Andrew McGill. He is currently earning his Master of Music Education degree from Westminster Choir College.
